

DAVID JUDSON CLEMMONS

Learn To Sing The Blues

I hear I owe a lot of people a lot of things that I let my rivers flow into the big, big streams I only wanted to try it and then I liked it then they called us a family looked at us differently

Now I'm gonna try to give everybody something until I don't owe anybody anything yeah we lived and we lied there we tricked and we cried there now we burned the roads behind us we just killed the life inside us

So when I'm finally sane I'll just walk out of this place go back and find the place where I come from but I'll hold the loves I've found carry them everywhere I go get to back to be the one that I once was

You don't have to share my faith to sing the blues the way I do destroy your life, for someone new you can learn to sing the blues the way I do

Now it's good to be home it's good just to be anywhere but I still feel alone but I could feel that way everywhere you only wanted to try me then you kind of liked me they called us a family started to look at us differently

Now love's just another trick of our mind to paintl us with illusion and steal our time let your wings fly you deeper inside you let them land you alone upon my door you don't have to share my faith
to sing the blues the way I do destroyed your life, that's nothing new learned to sing the blues the way I do copyright 2010 David Judson Clemmons

